

Continued from page 1...

Joseph advised the king to prepare Egypt for the drought by building large stockpiles of grain during the years of good harvests. Impressed by Joseph's interpretation, the pharaoh began filling granaries with surplus. He even put Joseph over the project. And as Joseph's dependability and character became evident, the pharaoh made him the prime minister of his court.

Back in Canaan, Joseph's family knew none of this. But when the predicted seven years of famine struck, they were desperate for food. Hearing that Egypt was well supplied, Jacob dispatched his sons there to buy grain. Their negotiations brought them face to face with Joseph, whom they did not recognize. Nor did he reveal his identity immediately. Only at a chosen moment did he let them know who he was.

On learning that they were dealing with Joseph, his brothers had mixed emotions. Remembering what they had done to him, they worried about him using his authority to take revenge. But Joseph responded much like Esau had done with Jacob. Forgetting the wrongs they had done him, Joseph embraced them warmly and invited them to bring his now aged father, their own wives, and their children to live in Egypt.

Thus, Jacob's descendants began what would become a 430-year stay in Egypt (Exodus 12:41). After Jacob died, Joseph carried his father's body back to Canaan and buried it there. Later, nearing his own death, Joseph made the Israelites pledge to take his bones with them when God returned them to Canaan. Four centuries later they honored his request (Exodus 13:19).

Digging Deeper...

Through Joseph's example, God calls on us to break the patterns of favoritism, dishonesty, deception, and unfair treatment that may have been in our families for generations. However, corrupt our ancestry, we can choose, like Joseph, to do what is right in every circumstance.

Joseph models the essence of forgiveness. Rather than take vengeance on his brothers, he opted to forgive them. Because he forgave, his children got to know their grandfather. Because he forgave, he got to see the tears of joy in his father's eyes as Jacob reunited with the son for whom he had grieved so long. Discuss how forgiveness changes things?

THE JOURNEY OF JOSEPH

Joseph, being the favorite son of Jacob, was given a magnificent robe that signaled the boy's singular status in his father's eyes. The other brothers began to plot revenge. They sold him to slave traders headed for Egypt. Then they took Joseph's robe, dipped it in blood, and brought it to their father. They left him with the impression that a wild beast had killed Joseph. Jacob was crushed. Having lost Rachel and now Joseph. He could not be consoled in his grief. Even though he became a household slave in Egypt, Joseph proved himself a person of great character. His first test of character occurred when his master's wife tried to seduce him. Angry at being rejected, she went to her husband and claimed that Joseph had tried to assault her. Joseph ended up in prison, but there he was again found so trustworthy that the jailer placed him in a position of supervision. Joseph became known in prison for his ability to explain the meaning of dreams. Among those he befriended was a former personal attendant to the pharaoh. This man was later restored to royal service and ultimately helped secure Joseph's release. The king, it seems, had a dream, and could find no one to interpret it. The restored attendant remembered Joseph and arranged for him to have an audience with the pharaoh.

After hearing about the dream, Joseph explained that God was using it to warn of an approaching severe drought. Prior to the drought, there would be seven abundant harvests, but seven years of famine would follow. (...continued page 4)
